The article text begins with: 'The Union Budget 2025 has taken decisive steps to uplift the agricultural sector, with initiatives that could significantly impact 1.7 crore farmers. The introduction of the agricultural district program targeting 100 underperforming districts is a commendable move, focusing on crop diversification, sustainable farming, and improved irrigation. The emphasis on strengthening post-harvest storage at the Panchayat and block levels will help reduce crop wastage and enhance price realization for farmers. Moreover, better access to credit, particularly through the expanded reach of Kisan Credit Cards (KCC), will improve financial liquidity for small and marginal farmers, driving rural entrepreneurship. The budget's push to enhance market linkages and strengthen local markets at the district level is expected to boost farmers' ability to sell their produce more competitively, ultimately fostering rural economic resilience.'
