Sohan Lal Commodity Management (SLCM), India’s leading agri solutions provider, has been conferred with ‘IoT Solutions in Warehouse of the Year 2019’ award at the 2nd Annual Future

Warehouses Summit & Awards 2019 in Mumbai recently.

SLCM was conferred with this award for consistently demonstrating innovative and scientific product handling through ‘Agri Reach’ which reduces post-harvest losses from 10 percent annually to 0.5 percent irrespective of infrastructure, crop or geographic location of the crop.

SLCM was also recognised in the “Best Agri and Fresh Produce Warehouse 2019” category during the award ceremony for driving excellence in the field of agri-supply chain and warehousing of fresh produce in India. Sitanshu Narad, Head – Corporate Communication, SLCM received these awards at the award ceremony.

- ▶ Govt removes export incentives for Onion as prices rise
- ▶ Maharashtra Sugar production may fall 39.2% on drought
- ▶ Global Coffee prices continue downtrend in May: ICO
- ▶ ISO sees global Sugar surplus of 1.83 MT in 2018-19
- ▶ India’s Natural Rubber production may rise 10% in 2019-20

Speaking post the award ceremony Sandeep Sabharwal, Group CEO, SLCM said, "It is an honour that SLCM has been recognised in 'IoT Solutions in Warehouse of the Year 2019' and "Best Agri and Fresh Produce Warehouse 2019" categories. Providing the latest cutting edge, innovative solutions to the agri fraternity is the core function area of SLCM. As a leading business in the agricultural services sector, we are constantly looking to develop new and avant-garde solutions that will benefit the entire agriculture eco-system."

"We have championed scientific storage practices of agriculture and fresh produce through our technology interventions and our proprietary agri services solution Agri Reach. We feel privileged to consistently perform a significant role in uplifting the agriculture sector in the country and pioneering innovative solutions in the sector," Sabharwal added.

Instituted by Transformance Business Media, these awards encourage, acknowledge and recognise individuals and organisations from the warehousing, allied and user industry categories for their contribution to the growth of the warehousing industry.
